"I suppose I'm the only man alive who ever got started painting as a result of trying to convince his kids he'd gone to college!" Bill Irving, who is sometimes referred to as the primitive painter's primitive painter, hitched up what he calls his "painting pants," sat down in his easy chair by the window overlooking Carmel beach, gave a tentative tug at his fire-engine red socks, and pushed a big dish of peanuts closer to my elbow.

"It all came about as a result of a little needling on the part of my son and daughter at dinner one evening in Los Angeles. My son, John, who's now a teaching assistant at UCLA while he works on his Master's degree, said that since I was the most widely uninformed man he'd ever seen, my formative years must have been spent in seminars in the corner pool hall.

"I indignantly allowed as how, to my very best recollection, I had graduated from Cal magna cum something-or-other and that if he pressed me too far, I'd prove it to his everlasting embarrassment.

"I should have known I couldn't bluff my own son. The next thing I knew, I was writing Berkeley for my transcript. When it arrived, my son had a field day ribbing me about my grades. It appeared that I was all C's and D's except for eight semesters of art which, as I recalled, had been an easy way to get a few extra credits with practically no work. These eight semes-

Carmel May Lose Control Of Its Schools Through Co. Committee Action

Library Receives Valuable Collection Of Weston Prints

The Harrison Memorial Library last week was the recipient of a gift of photographic prints done by the late Edward Weston, which, added to the ones already in the library, make a total collection probably equal to any in the country. This latest group consists of one copy of the Weston Album with an introduction by Mr. Weston, printed by the Grabhorn Press, and valued at $200.

The rest of the collection consists of 105 individual prints which bring the total value of the gift to $4,000. The donor of this generous contribution wishes to remain anonymous, but the library and the community are greatly in his debt, Ruth Thornburg, librarian says. The library is endeavoring to arrange some sort of exhibition of the prints, but due to the limited space this is a difficult thing to do. It may be that the best solution is to place the prints in the small case in the reading room, says Mrs. Thornburg, changing them often during the next few weeks.

Planners Have No Map But Plenty Of Broad Principles

The city council expected to have a look at the planning commission's doughnut plan for a new zoning ordinance for the business district when it met with the commissioners in joint session Monday night.

They had to be content with just hearing about it.

The planning commissioners said they didn't want to be too geometric or geographical right now. Just wanted to find out if the council liked their "broad principles." Besides, property owners get excited when they see their property in a colored ring that means that under the new ordinance they'll have a laundry next door, or perhaps they'll find themselves in the cold outer fringe where all they can build is a motel, office building or church. The commissioners didn't say all that. They just said the property owners get excited when they see themselves in a ring on a map and yell, "Hey, that's MY property."

Anyway the map has been mislaid.

They explained their broad principles which include taking the laundries and service stations and auto repair shops out of the C-2 zone (the six blocks in the northeast corner of town around Junipero Street north of Ocean) where they've been allowed for 19 years, and putting them in a circle (S-service zone) around a central core retail zone in a protected business district where they have never been allowed. They wrap it all up in an outer, buffer zone where only motels, professional offices, clubs, Tonight, when the Carmel Unified School District Board meets at 7:00 o'clock in the high school library, the trustees will hear two reports. The one will be a disappointment to their hopes of a county junior college district; the other will be cause for anxiety.

Superintendent Stuart Mitchell will tell them of the defeat in committee hearing of the "package" junior college bill in Sacramento, yesterday.

Planners Hint City Should Build P. O. On Junipero Lots

Carmel planners yesterday afternoon decided to alert the city council that bids for a new post office in Carmel must be submitted to the Post Office Department before June 17. Planners added that should the city council find the city has any interest in the matter, particularly in regard to city-owned property at Fourth and Junipero Streets, that the city express its interest to the Post Office Department.

This motion will be sent to the city council before their meeting next week.

Planning Commissioner Hugh Smith brought the post office matter to the attention of the planners. He referred to the report which he and Commissioner Jessie McGregor gave to the commission several months ago. This survey gave possible locations for a new post office in Carmel and recommended the city-owned property at the northeast corner of Fourth and Junipero Street as most favorable, despite disadvantages.

Commissioner Herbert Blanks made the motion to alert the council, pointing out advantages of loading dock and parking space at the Junipero Street site. He urged that the city council interest itself in the post office site, "a new location which may be used for 25 years," particularly in regard to traffic patterns.

Commissioner Florence Josselyn concurred with Mr. Blanks. Commissioner Smith suggested that the city, if interested, ask for an extension of time to consider possibilities of the city-owned site.

Planning Commission Secretary Larry Rose assured planners that the Post Office Department will inform the city council of proposed sites and consult with the council concerning city interests and

MEMORIAL DAY SERVICES

Memorial Day Services will be held at 11:00 o'clock on Saturday morning in Devendorf Plaza, conducted by Carmel American Legion Post No. 512. A chaplain from Fort Ord will deliver a memorial tribute to Carmel men who died in active service. A color guard and bugler from Fort Ord will also take part in the ceremonies. Representatives from the Carmel Legion Post and Boy Scout troops will attend. Earlier in the day graves of Carmel veterans will be decorated by Legionnaires Al Chapin and Charles Hamm.

Board member George Yates will tell them that the County Committee of School District Organization voted in Salinas, yesterday, to undertake a study of a Monterey Peninsula school district, not just a Peninsula Junior College District, but a unification of all the schools: elementary and high schools of Pacific Grove, Carmel, Monterey, everything from and including Pfeiffer's two-room school on the skirts of Big Sur State Park to Marina's burgeoning elementary under one executive board, supported on one tax base.

The county committee's voting to institute a study is not as informal as it sounds. It is a legal action which places the Carmel schools in jeopardy. The county committee, when it votes for a study, puts in motion a formal procedure leading directly to a recommendation to the state board of education. Once the first step is taken, as was done in Salinas yesterday, the individual school districts have no control. Decision lies entirely with the 11 member county committee of school district organization whether or not they will recommend to the state board of education that an election be called to form a unified Peninsula school district. The state board has the power to instruct the county superintendent of schools to call the election, and she must do so. If it is a Peninsula-wide election, in which the districts do not vote separately, Carmel's vote could not influence the outcome. In reaching its decision, the county committee can take into consideration the protest of a minority group such as the Carmel Unified School District, but it doesn't have to. It may not even feel that it is justified in doing so.

Yesterday's meeting in Salinas was the final in a series resulting from a study on whether Monterey should unify its elementary and high school district; and if so, should Pfeiffer and Palo Colorado elementary school districts join Carmel or Monterey, and should Marina district join Monterey or annex to Salinas. A unified Peninsula district was not under discussion.

An augmented committee, a temporary committee of five, made up of representatives of the school districts concerned in the then existing study, sat with the "basic" committee, (the county committee of school district organization).

Walter Warfield, the Monterey representative on the augmented committee, made a motion for a unified Monterey district including Marina, Pfeiffer and Palo Colorado. It failed to achieve a majority vote.

Then Monterey proposed that the Monterey Unification study be

SAN CARLOS REALTY WINS LITTLE LEAGUE FIRST HALF Little League Standings (As of May 26th)

San Carlos Realty enjoyed a big week in Little League play by winning a playoff of a tie with Wilder & Jones, beating the plumbers in a full-length game, and clipping the Turner & McEldowney club. With these three wins, Jack Miller's crew sewed up the first half championship and is now rated a heavy favorite to win the 1959 Little League crown. The realtors overcame a home run by Joe Fernandez to beat Wilder & Jones, 7 to 5, as Jeff Zills, Bob Moffett, and Craig Cunningham shared the pitching duties. George Thaler pitched for Wilder & Jones, allowing 5 hits over the six-inning route.

Pilot Market slipped out of contention for the first half title when the Sport Shop upset them, 7 to 1. The sports got terrific bat support from Pat Woolsey, Howdy King, and Robin Smith in hotching the win over the grocers. Pat and Howdy each had 3 safeties in 4 chances while Robin blasted his second round-tripper of the season. Phil Van Dyne and Howdy King pitched the win for Sport Shop with Tim Mosolf and George Dubets receiving for the loss.

After a loss to the classy San Carlos, Turner & McEldowney bounced back to edge Sport Shop, 6 to 4, in seven innings. Don Blanks pitched a fine six-hitter for the winners, receiving excellent support from second baseman Lawson Little and third baseman Richard Wise. Howdy King and Phil Van Dyne allowed the winners nine hits, striking out five, and giving two free passes.

Wilder & Jones shattered the single game scoring record at the expense of Boys' Town by clubbing the clothiers, 21 to 3, with Joe Fernandez hitting four-for-five and George Thaler hitting three-for-four. Thaler also scored 5 runs to set a new record for little leaguers to shoot at. Greg Jones pitched the win for the plumbers, allowing 3 hits and striking out 8 Boys' Town swingers. Maynard Petersen picked up two of the hits off the slants of pitcher Jones.

Second half Little League action gets underway next Monday evening with Jack Miller's San Carlos Champs crossing bats with Art Carpenter's second-place Pilot Market gang.

Last Saturday's Little League

Farm Team play saw Whitney's Restaurant topping the Rockets, Special Delivery finishing in front of Nikko's, and the Village Inn clipping the Little Sparrows. This Saturday's Farm Team schedule played at the Little League park finds Nikko's and Derek Rayne at 10 a.m., Whitney's and Little Sparrows taking over at 12 Noon, and the Rockets and Special Delivery swinging away at 2 o'clock.

CARMEL BABE RUTH TEAM IN DEBUT THIS SATURDAY

Manager Bob Henny sends his Carmel Babe Ruth squad into action for the first time this season when it clashes with the Monterey Merchants in Saturday's league-opener at El Estero Park. The Carmel-Monterey Merchant game is slated for a 3 o'clock getaway immediately after the Moose Lodge-Baldwin Piano tilt. This will be Carmel's second year in the Babe Ruth League and things are looking up for the 13-15 year old pastimers. With a year's experience in the fast kid's loop and two veteran pitchers on the roster, the Carmel lads should prove hard to handle in this season's play. Carmel will have a starting lineup on opening day of Tim Bratton, catcher; Forrest Cornwall or Jim Brown, pitcher; David Rosenkranz, first base; Baxter Garcia, second base; David Harber, third base; Dennis Clark, shortstop; Joe Sponsler, left field; Don Clark, center field; and Steve Fairfield, right field.

PHIL WHITE SETS NORTH COAST VAULT RECORD

Phil White, Carmel High's husky pole-vault sensation, proved to be the best prep vaulter in Northern California at the North Coast Section Meet last Saturday at Berkeley's Edwards Field. The brilliant senior high flyer set a new NCS record of 13 feet 1 1/2 inches and established himself as one of the top vaulters in the state. Phil accumulated 8 points for his winning effort to give Carmel High ninth place in the big meet. White's running mate, Frank Wallace, nearly hit the score column in the half-mile, running sixth to a classy field of 880 stars.

A trip to the State Meet at Bakersfield is in store for White this Saturday where he will meet the best vaulters from Southern California. Top vault mark in the state this year is 13-10 by last year's State Meet champ from Glendale High.

CARMEL LOSES PAIR TO KING CITY

King City High's varsity and junior-varsity baseball teams found the Carmel diamonds to their liking last Friday and put on good hitting displays to win a double-header from the Padres. The Mustang varsity finished in front, 10 to 4, while the jayvees got the job done, 5 to 1.

Big second and third innings sewed up the varsity tilt for the Mustangs as they hit around the batting order in both innings to rack up 7 runs. The Padres pecked away at the big Mustang lead until they closed the gap to 7-6 going into the final heat. However, King City got three insurance markers in the top of the seventh to put the game out of reach. Big gun in the Mustang attack was shortstop Mal Gregory who stroked a torrid four-for-five, including three doubles. Dale Dawson and Frank Mayo each garnered two hits to lead the Carmel swingers. The winners, combed Carmel's Jim Brown for 16 safeties while King City's pitcher, Bob Campbell, was doing out 12 scattered hits to the Padres.

King City's junior-varsity batted around in the third inning to score 4 runs on 2 hits and 5 free trips to first. Barring streaks of wildness, Forrest Cornwall pitched creditable ball for the Little Padres, giving up 5 hits over the seven-inning route. The slender freshman hurler walked 9 and struck out 7 Pony hitters.

PADRES END BASEBALL SEASON AT PG FRIDAY

Carmel High's varsity baseball team closes out a mediocre season of play this Friday afternoon when it clashes with arch-rival Pacific Grove at the Breaker diamond. The Padre junior-varsity finished its season last Friday and has hung up the spangles until next year. Pacific Grove will have a strong revenge motive in tomorrow's closer since Carmel beat them the first time around and knocked them out of contention for the league title.

Jim Brown, ace freshman hurler, will toss them over for the Padres and his opponent will be hard-throwing Archie Stewart, who is the top southpaw pitcher in the B-division. Brown bested the talented junior in the first game, and tomorrow's rematch should be a dandy.

Playing their last game for the Red & Gray will be seniors Dale Dawson, Larry Dufur, Ron Hinchcliff, and Mike O'Shea. Carmel's starting lineup has an infield of Mike O'Shea, Bud Cunningham, Ron Faia, Bob Little, and Dave Fuller while the outfield will be manned by Dale Dawson, Larry Dufur, and Dave Hansen.

Citizens Committee Takes Action On Greenbelt, Freeway

Admiral C. W. Fisher, chairman of the Carmel Citizens Committee, was pleased with the turnout for the open meeting Monday night in Sunset Cafeteria.

"We had well over 100, more than we had chairs for. Some of them had to sit on tables."

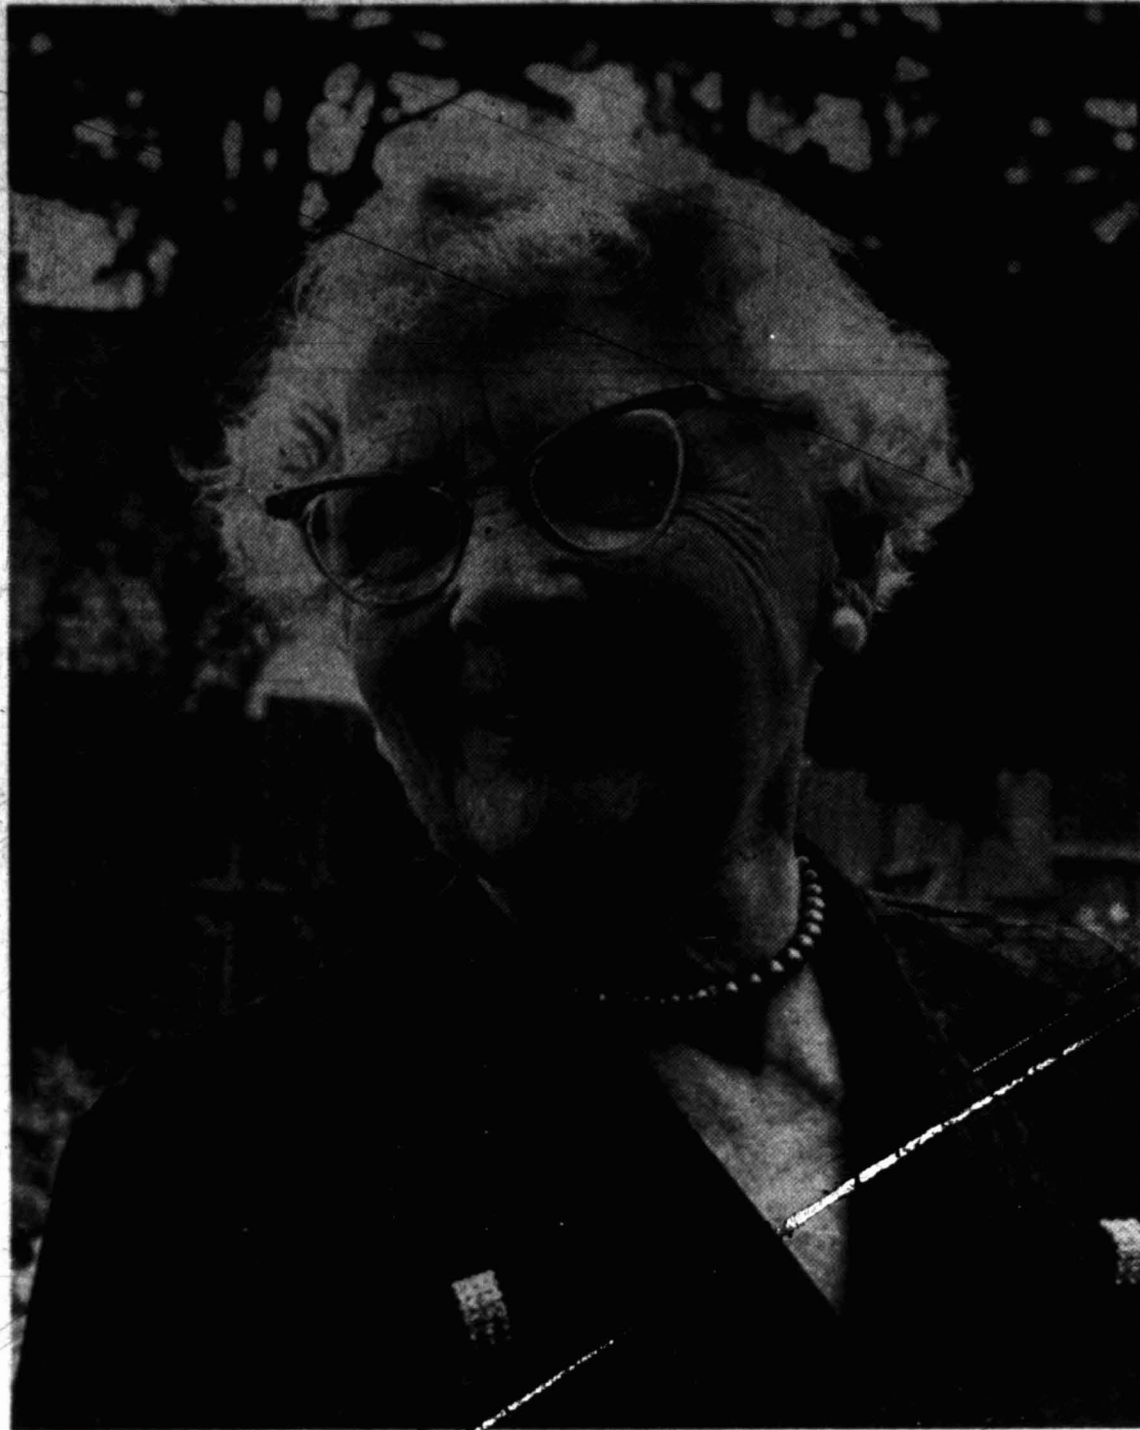

Supervisor Thomson Hudson reported on his green belt proposal which had been discussed at the Asilomar meeting recently, namely that a foundation already established, The Monterey Foundation, be designated custodian and/or recipient to obtain and hold easements, real estate and funds for the purpose of obtaining a green belt.

The members of the Citizens Committee passed a resolution that the proposal appears to have merit, that the committee favors investigation of all aspects of the proposal, and that they would assist in investigating in a manner and to the extent that their executive committee may determine.

The Monterey Foundation, whose president is J. F. van Loben Sels of Carmel, is the organization which was active in preserving the adobes of Monterey.

R. Rolleston West gave an analysis of the proposed interchanges at Carmel Hill-Pacific Grove intersection and at Carpenter Street, pointing out that much is to be desired in their planning. On the Carpenter Street interchange there are eleven intersections, he said.

The Citizens Committee voted to

Mrs. J. C. Buffington, Sr., had her ninetieth birthday on May 16. The following day she was guest of honor at a party in her home on Carmel Point, attended by 50 friends. Arrangements for the birthday party were made by Mrs. Buffington's daughter, Miss Ruth Buffington, her son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Buffington, Jr., and her friend Miss Marjorie Ribbel. Mrs. Buffington's granddaughters, Mrs. Vincent Colletto and Mary Buffington assisted in serving the guests.

Admiral Fisher told the group that there was a joint meeting of planning commission and city council that night at city hall on a proposed new zoning plan for the central district, and that the citizens committee would have a detailed analysis of it from their subcommittee.

Bill Irving Paints To Prove He's Educated

Irving laughed reflectively and said, "In order to prove to my family that early years hadn't been spent completely in vain, I bought some oils and canvas and I've been painting ever since. Never had so much fun in my life."

Irving paints hilarious little canvases which sparkle with pure unalloyed wit and humor. One of his latest is laid on the 18th hole at Pebble Beach during the "first" Crosby tournament—fully authentic except that the participating golfers are all early mission priests, while curious Indians make up the gallery and act as caddies.

One little man with a walrus moustache stared out of the canvas, and his counterpart appeared in several other paintings. When asked about him, Irving defensively snared a few peanuts from the fast-emptying saucer by my elbow and replied, "When my wife and I were on the Vancouver ferry once, we ran across this man with the big moustache who must have been from Texas. You know the type—once he gets out of his own bailiwick, he's always on the defensive, overly loud and blustery, mainly because he's actually a little lost. He made such an impression that he's been in most of my pictures since then—either as an excursionist on a canal boat in Holland, an elderly lifeguard on the beach of an English seaside resort, or even a tourist in a painting of the Friday afternoon art show at the Carmel Craft Center. He's my favorite character."

Irving was born in Helena, Montana, but his parents came to San Francisco when he was very small. He remembers the 1906 earthquake and fire to the extent that he recalls sleeping in a park after the family home was burned.

His boyhood was spent in San Francisco where his father was a merchant. He went to the University at Berkeley where he took up tennis and became captain of the tennis team. After graduation, he went on the tennis circuit, playing such names as Big Bill Tilden, Little Bill Johnston and playing mixed doubles with Helen Wills as his partner. He won several tournaments at the Del Monte Hotel and at the height of his tennis career, he was ranked 14th in the nation. He quit the game when Big Bill Tilden defeated him in the semi-finals of the National Tennis Championship matches at Forest Hills, Long Island. He felt that he had gone about as far as he could go.

Irving's attractive wife, Mildred, despite discreet signalling from her husband, opened another can of peanuts and poured them into the empty dish at my side.

"I had a succession of jobs after that," Irving recalled. "After a two year stint as a reporter on the New York American, I went into the national advertising field with Lord and Thomas, the big advertising agency."

"Because I played weekend tennis with the boss, I was tapped to be art director for the Chicago office of Lord and Thomas. I said I didn't know anything about art but they gave me the job anyway. This led to a two year position with the old Kolster Radio Company as advertising manager."

"About this time, my father's sudden illness brought me back to California where I met Mildred and we were married. I went into the Emporium as a buyer. Then there were several jobs as manager of a number of Bay Area stores until Roos Brothers sent me to Southern California to manage their Hollywood store. On the side, I went back to tennis and was the pro on weekends at the Hillcrest Country Club."

"By 1945, the old legs began to slow down and then the big Italian knitting firm of Luisa Spagnoli of Perugia selected me to be their

The reason for creating this S-circle between the central core retail and the outer motel buffer circle the planners explained, is that property has got so expensive in the old C-2 zone that laundries, auto repair shops and service stations just can't afford to build there. When the council of 19

Western Regional manager."

The high spot of his connection with the Italian firm was his receiving from the Italian government the Italian Medal of Solidarity.

"Since some of the other recipients of this award have been such transplanted paisians as Frank Sinatra, Joe DeMaggio, Fiorello La Guardia, and Congressman Frank Pastore," Mrs. Irving interrupted, "I had difficulty preventing his signing 'Guglielmo Irving to his subsequent paintings.'"

"During my travels for the company," he went on with an injured look at his wife, "we had several opportunities to re-discover Carmel which we remembered from our earlier days in the Bay area. We came here every chance we had. We had definitely decided we would like to retire here."

These plans became somewhat of a reality when a mild heart attack struck Irving early this year while on a holiday here. Since then, he has been recuperating in the small house on Scenic drive where he paints leisurely, surrounded on all sides by the speakers of his stereophonic sound system.

"It makes me feel I'm always in the middle of something. Since I sort of like crowds of people and a lot of activity—it's my own brand of Togetherness."

Off to southern California again to pick up the reins of his business, Irving and his wife plan to return permanently to Carmel when he retires and can spend all his time painting.

"I don't paint because I have any particular compulsion to paint, nor because it's relaxing, nor therapeutic. I paint because it's fun," he said.

His paintings are fun to see, too, and his one-man show at the Center Gallery starting on June 7 will share his fun with the community.

As he rescued the decimated supply of peanuts from me and politely nudged me out the door, he said, "I expect my first grandson almost any day now. But just because I'm a primitive painter doesn't mean I have to be called 'Grandpa' Irving from now on."

years ago worked up the zoning ordinance and set aside that northeast section of the city for "service" uses which make smelly, noisy or messy looking neighbors, they had no idea how that area would become such an important part of Carmel with its motel row, according to the planners.

The council was polite, also, it didn't want to commit itself at that meeting. James Buffington said the planners had put a lot of work on it, and it appeared to have merit, but he needed more time. Allen Knight said, yes, it had merit, and he needed time for study. When they pressed him for his opinion on the S-circle, which they admitted at the start would be a bit controversial, Councilman Allen Knight said: "A good rule of thumb in planning for Carmel is to follow custom."

The planning commission beamed, apparently not realizing that 19 years of keeping the undesirable "service" uses, by means of a rigid zoning ordinance, in the C-2 zone is a pretty well established custom.

The planners then said, "We're agreed in general." And pressed further, obviously hoping for approval of their basic principles then and there so they could start right in to draw up a zoning ordinance to implement their doughnut.

Then Mr. Norberg was forced to break the bad news to them. He didn't fancy laundry, service station, auto repair shop fugitives from the C-2 zone in a circle around the "central core." If the property had become too expensive in the C-2 zone for such things, fine. In addition to the few we have in the C-2 zone, we have all those laundries and repair shops on the south side of the city, who serve us gladly.

The planners bristled. They said some of the S-circle service uses would be on use permit which would have to be obtained from them.

Also, in defending the S-circle, one of the planners again spoke condescendingly and slightly of the makers of the original zoning ordinance and their lack of vision in putting the services in the north Junipero square.

A young old timer, son of an old timer, who had been sitting quietly in the audience, took exception. Dale Leidig spoke of the high quality brains of the city council which had created Carmel's zoning ordinance those 19 years ago, and especially of the city attorney, the late Argyll Campbell. He thought their planning was still good. It was because of the safeguards they had set up that Carmel is the city it is today.

The meeting broke up shortly after that with a date for another planner-council gathering around the doughnut on June 15, 7:30 o'clock.

Tree Tour Agenda Has 3 Pine Removal Requests, One Oak

Three tree removal requests and several sidewalk and driveway matters are on the agenda for the City Council's tree tour meeting Tuesday afternoon, starting from city hall at 4:00 o'clock.

J. M. Roberts asks reconsideration of the council's decision in April when they suggested that he try to construct his driveway on his property on Camino Real near Second without removing the pine.

Applicant claims it is impractical to do so.

George H. Westcott asks permission to remove one pine and one oak for driveway construction at Torres near Fifth. Raymond Menes wants a leaning pine removed at Santa Fe and Second. He believes it is dangerous.

The Pacific Gas and Electric Company requests permission to top and shape cypress trees where they obstruct power lines on the east side of San Antonio from Ocean to Thirteenth Street. Also there is a request to trim trees which obstruct lights illuminating the baseball diamond at Sunset playground, Eighth and San Carlos.

J. E. McEldowney wishes to vary his driveway grade at Dolores and First; R. Catlin wants to know whether a rock parkway and grass sidewalk area at Tradewinds Inn, Mission and Third, requires a variance. C. R. Cornelison wishes a variance for a blacktopped walkway which crosses the sidewalk area at Surf Tides Lodge, Fifth Avenue and Mission.

The council will consider reduction of sidewalk width to 10 feet along the east side of San Carlos between Sixth and Ocean. This will require removal of small palm, a pine stump, and necessitate sidewalk repairs.

The fire department's request to open Santa Fe to Fourth Avenue, and Fourth Avenue between Santa Rita and Santa Fe comes up again for consideration. It was put over last month because there was no representative of the Carmel Volunteer Fire Department present to explain the necessity.

Planners Hint City Should Build P. O. On Junipero Lots

traffic patterns.

A. W. (Bud) Clark, present in the audience, told commissioners that in a recent conversation with Post Office Department personnel, he found postal authorities intend to confer with the council and planning commission before reaching a decision on a new post office site for Carmel. He said that he surmised from this conference that the Post Office Department felt the city had "no interest" in opening the Fourth and Junipero site.

Other planners' action yesterday afternoon was to grant a use permit for one year to the Citizens Committee to mount a bulletin board on the Philip Wilson building at the northwest corner of Dolores and Ocean Avenue. This board will inform the public of Citizens Committee meetings and actions, city council and planning commission meetings, and display pertinent information on city affairs, according to Admiral C. W.

Fisher, chairman of the Citizens Committee.

Permission to use the display site may be revoked by the Board of Adjustments after 60 days notice is given either to the owner of the building or the Citizens Committee. Permission to renew the use permit must be obtained at the end of the granted year.

Leslie C. Fenton obtained 90 days extension of time to commence construction of Carmel Plaza buildings in order to complete architectural and engineering studies, and to revise plans of his proposed bank and store building.

Remodelling permits were granted by commissioners to Henry Bolinger for his candy store on the east side of Dolores Street between Fifth and Sixth Avenues; to Hallie Sampson for the front elevation of the former O'Keeffe building on Dolores Street; to L. K. Hunter for a store and office on the South side of Fifth Avenue between Dolores and San Carlos Streets. Paul Jones may build two garages three feet from his property line on two steep lots on Torres Street northeast of Tenth.

Planning Commission Secretary Larry Rose showed commissioners the new map of the General Plan for the city of Carmel now in the council chambers. This map shows deletions and additions made to the original Livingston Plan. It leaves blank the central business district still under consideration. Next joint meeting of council and commission on the central district will be at 7:15 o'clock on June 15 in the city hall, Mr. Rose told planning commissioners.

Midshipman Lee M. Cutler, who will graduate from Annapolis on June 3, is the son of Captain S. Y. Cutler, (USN Ret.) and Mrs. Cutler of Carmel. Mrs. Cutler is now on an eastern trip visiting friends and relatives in Greensboro, North Carolina, Washington, D. C., and New York. She will be joined next week by her daughter Shirley, and they will go together to Annapolis for June week and graduation.

Lee graduated from high school in Lafayette before the family came to Carmel to live, and entered the Naval Academy in 1955 on a Senatorial appointment. Following commencement he will have a 30-day leave in Carmel and then join the U. S. Aircraft Carrier S. S. Bennington. Captain Cutler, who is teaching engineering at Monterey Peninsula College, will be unable to see his son graduate, because of college duties. Shirley Cutler attended Carmel High School for two years, graduating in 1957, and going on to Oregon State College.

FROM A LIBRARIAN'S NOTEBOOK

Ruth Galvin Thornburg, Librarian

If you tire of changes in the weather, you might consider life in the Negev desert, where there have been no climatic changes in the past ten thousand years. This monotonous weather condition is just one of the facts unearthed in the historical delving done in the Negev desert of southern Palestine by Dr. Nelson Glueck. Civilizations have flourished and then disappeared in this ancient section of the world, and Dr. Glueck traces and discusses them in the language of the layman. The title of the book is Rivers in the Desert.

Nora Barlow is a granddaughter of Charles Darwin and she has recently edited his autobiography to include all the omissions which his over-protective family weeded out of the first editions of the work. He made some pungent observations on religion and certain of his friends and associates, which his family thought would add nothing to his reputation, so they deleted them from the autobiography as first published in 1887. We have this new edition and it is entitled the Autobiography of Charles Darwin, just as the earlier version was.

Reading reviews about the struggle of the tramp steamer Normandier, adrift in the Atlantic with all of her crew sick with blackwater fever, caused one librarian to dash to the dictionary to see just what blackwater fever is. Now I know. It is a particularly virulent form of malaria. Now you know. The book about this dreadful voyage is called The Strange Ordeal of the Normandier and it was written by H. L. Tredree who was wireless operator and who miraculously escaped death from the fever. This is the truth which is stranger than fiction. The author may never write another book, for writing is not exactly his line, but this one will hold your interest and attention.

As a librarian, I am of two minds about the recent book edited by Clifton Fadiman with the assistance of Charles Van Doren, of television wealth and erudition. The title of the book is The American Treasury. The two minds arise because of the fact that the book contains such a vast amount of information that it is too big to read through and too valuable to omit from our collection, even though most of it will probably lie informationally fallow for the life of the book. It is "the prose, poetry, and song, drawn from our life, laughter, and literature" and it thus comprises a complete survey course on America and Americans. Take it and browse through it for a few evenings and be the richer for doing so.

A novel on integration is The Intruder by Charles Beaumont, a strong story and not a pretty one. There are other novels including a mystery or two. And we should mention The Tall Girls Handbook by Gwen Davenport, who is herself a tall girl. More good books than we have space to talk about, so come in and check the list on the bulletin board.

JUNE 5 DEADLINE FOR PHONE DIRECTORY CHANGES

June 5 is the last day that changes or additions may be made to the alphabetical section of the 1959 Monterey and San Benito Counties phone book, according to D. D. Muir, Pacific Telephone Co. manager. Those wanting to get a separate listing for their children or for others living in their homes, or who want to change the way their names appear, should notify their telephone business office no later than this date.

The new directory is scheduled for delivery in July.

CONSTELLATIONS OF THE ZODIAC—GEMINI: THE TWINS

Gemini, the Dioscuri, the Heavenly Twins, Castor and Pollux, form the third Sign of Spring in the Zodiac, ruling from May 22 to June 21. They may be seen a little West of the zenith in early evening, above Orion, North of Sirius and Procyon, the bright dog stars. Follow a line through the stars of the dipper's bottom, away from the handle and you will see Castor, a white second magnitude star, and his yellow twin, first magnitude Pollux.

The ancient Hebrews thought of them as Esau and Jacob, twin stars of the third month, Siwan; as Adam and Eve, or as Cain and Abel. To the Romans, they were Romulus and Remus, founders of Rome. Others regarded them as the twin pillars, erected before their temples. They were the sign of the Island of Melita, noted in The Acts 28:11.

Twin boys were regarded with awe by the ancients, so many tales were told of these twin stars. The Greeks made them sons of Leda, Queen of Sparta. Castor, fathered by the King, Tyndareus, was mortal; while Pollux, sired by Jupiter, who wooed Leda in guise of a swan, was immortal. These adventurous lads were great horsemen and hunters; Castor the patron of horsemanship, Pollux of boxing. They were Argonauts with Jason in the search for the Golden Fleece. They were said to cause St. Elmo's fire to protect ships. Medallions bearing their sign or likeness were worn by travellers about the Mediterranean as St. Christopher medals are worn today.

Early Christians used them to signify the twofold nature of Christ, a symbol of the Master and His redeemed among men.

Astrology places them under the rule of Mercury, the messenger of the gods. They are said to represent dual personality, the human and divine sides of man's nature. This sign governs the arms and shoulders. —Hal Armor.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE SERMON

How the armour of righteousness enables man to withstand the attacks of evil will be brought out at Christian Science services Sunday.

In the Lesson-Sermon entitled "Ancient and Modern Necromancy, alias Mesmerism and Hypnotism, Denounced," passages read from the Bible will include (Ephesians 6:11): "Put on the whole armour of God, that ye may be able to stand against the wiles of the devil."

Correlative passages to be read from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy include (371:15): "At all times and under all circumstances, overcome evil with good. Know thyself, and God will supply the wisdom and the occasion for a victory over evil. Clad in the panoply of Love, human hatred cannot reach you. The cement of a higher humanity will unite all interests in the one divinity."

mentary school in the upper valley.

No further expansion of Woods, Sunset or River Schools.

Four additional classrooms and a multipurpose room at Carmelo in lower Valley.

When the new high school is completed, the old high school should be used for a junior high grades seven through nine; Woods, River and Sunset for kindergarten through six, with the detached buildings at the south end of Sunset used for district administrative offices.

Carmelo should also be used for kindergarten through sixth. Tularcitos, though it will have 20 classrooms, when the new rooms are completed, will be full next fall, hence the recommendation for another elementary school and a junior high school in upper Valley.

According to Superintendent Stuart Mitchell there will have to be considerable bussing around from school to school, and possibly some double sessions, for the junior high school group while the new high school is being built.

Most of the recommendations of the University of California survey team simply support the tentative plans which the school board made following the annexation of the Valley to the district, though the survey team was working independently.

It is expected that the board will call for a bond issue as soon as the survey team produces its final report, which will include recommendations for financing the building program.

State Highway department has invited bids for replacing laminated timber and rustic redwood guard railing with metal plate railing at several locations along Highway No. 1 between Little Sur River and the junction with Carmel Valley Road.

FARM BEFORE DAYLIGHT

A farm wrapped, muffled;
Silo encased in gray;
Animal feet shuffled,
Dark tongues raking cool sweet hay.
Tractor stands near a dovecote;
Nightbird whirrs past steel treads,
Cries through the fields, grows remote,
As pearl light touches dark cloud heads.
One by one farm rooms are lighted;
Mist lights up on fences and lawn.
Kittens arrive, uninvited,
To sing for milk at dawn.

DESUETUDE

I move the centuries of sand away,
Revealing hand-pressed balls of unused clay;
Vanished the potter! Yet prints of his fingers stay;
I seem to hear that artist's mute lips say:—
"You are a poet from another age—
Beauty is measured by a timeless gauge—
Where are your words inscribed? How blank your page!
I did not mold the masterpiece I planned.
How dry that clay you found beneath the sand!
Art is never wrought by stiff, dead hand."

Gallop snow-horses of wind
From the Sea of Okhotsk.
Wide scimitars of moon

Siberian winds twist knives in their blades;
The fox and the white bear
Prowl the pale acres of tundra,
The wild reindeer scratch under the snow
For the gelatin moss—
Blue glacier clouds
Bloom over Himalayan peaks;
The gray stone of sky
Drops into marbled waters.

EARTH TO EARTH

Bare feet on adobe,
Bathed in life-giving sun,
Earth-born drawn to good earth,
Journey that man shall run.

Bricks made from adobe,
Mellowed in drying sun,
Good earth for a dwelling,
Home that man has begun.

Tilled rows in adobe,
Warmed by the summer sun,
Good earth for the blue corn,
Harvest that man has won.

Back to the old adobe,
Drenched in healing sun,
Clay-freed the soul has bloomed,
Journey of man is done.

Music On The Peninsula

BY MARY LINDSAY-OLIVER

The Chamber Music Society's last concert this season took place at the Woman's Club Sunday. Not hearing the one in April, being out of town, it is not possible to compare accomplishment, but an interesting and varied program was given. No need now to search talent elsewhere when there are so many good local musicians to tackle old and modern compositions and occasional first reading of a local composer, and judging from Sunday's audience, interest in chamber music has grown.

Director Gilbert Boyer provided a program of Vivaldi, Bach, Beethoven and Mozart. Also there was a first reading of Three Impressions for Flute, Cello and Piano by Hascal Vaughan Stewart of Carmel, pieces of dissonant and nebulous character which would have sounded better with more adequate rehearsal, though she was well applauded for her effort and came forward to thank the players. They were Eiko Yoshizato, Katherine Thompson, Mary Dobel and Gilbert Boyer. The unaccompanied Bach Chaconne from Partita No. 2 was an excellent solo by violinist Fred Hermann who played with breadth and strong bowing of its difficult and intricate phrases, and received an ovation. Fred Stockton, guitarist, played the unusual solo part of the Vivaldi Concerto in his usual gentle musical tones, which at times were overpowered by the other instruments, conducted by Boyer. Never the less, it was an interesting performance. The Beethoven Quartet op 18, No. 3 thoroughly established the recently created Carmel Quartet, composed of Eiko Yoshizato, David Hagemeyer, Jerald Slavich and Mary Dobel, as a most promising ensemble en rapport with each other. They infused the four movements with feeling and brilliancy, and found full approbation from the audience. The Mozart Concerto for Piano and Orchestra in C major, which completed the program, presented young Carol Crumpley as soloist, winner of the Chamber Society's Contest, though not winner for the Monterey Symphony for which she also competed. She played the familiar long Mozart composition with considerable brilliancy but metallic tone and little modulation, though with competence in rhythmic and thematic repetitions throughout, and was roundly recalled. For this and the Vivaldi, the orchestra, conducted by Boyer was made up of 22 players, mostly from the personnel of Monterey County Symphony Orchestra who did their parts with credit to all concerned. We look forward to more of such concerts next season.

Sam Dilworth, a graduate of the Manhattan School of Music was heard in a piano recital of considerable proportions at the USO. In Bach-Liszt, Haydn, Schubert, Chopin and Schumann selections, he exhibited a technique equal to almost any demands, but tendency to play everything in the same manner with a somewhat brittle touch. Despite an innate emotional feeling, he brought forth startling dynamics with too little poetic concept. The modern pianist seems generally afraid of pianissimos, even in Chopin. His best effort was in the Bach-Liszt Prelude and Fugue, and some of the Schumann Carnival, opus 9, where his pianistic prowess was brilliant throughout, in spite of an overdose of Sforzandos. However, some of this may have had to do with the piano and the hall's poor acoustics.

And Now, Greece

Globe encircling William Bishop reports from Athens this week that the "Glory that was Greece" is all around him, and "the climate typical for Carmel for the first time since I left our lovely village."

"Tomorrow (May 16) I am leaving for the Island of Cerigo at the extreme South of Greece. Then I am to fly to Crete. On my return I will set out for the long pull to Rotterdam via Yugoslavia, Venice, Vienna and other European cities."

As for Athens: "Its throng of pedestrians resembles 42nd Street and Broadway if not a little more so."

"I am staying at the Hotel Iliou with a nephew of mine who accompanied me from our Village at Mount Parnassus. The Iliou is a modern, 10 story structure with lots of marble, all modern conveniences and very clean, in the heart of the city. I was surprised at what they charged us: 75 drachmas, which is $2.50 a night for the two of us."

"My nephew is waiting anxiously for me to finish this letter so he can take me to a 'Patisserie' where one finds such wonderful sweets of Greek and Turkish origin as 'Kataifi, Baklava, Florgera.'"

An he asks to be remembered to his Carmel friends.

Wilderness Of The West

A Monthly Column
by C. Edward Graves

"The Tyranny of the Automobile" at Lake Tahoe

Here in Carmel we have of late been doing some hard thinking on the results of what has been termed "the tyranny of the automobile." There is no doubt that the American people are slaves to mechanical transportation. The visual evidence of this fact is staring more and more brazenly at us from the top of Carmel Hill.

As the open spaces of our wilderness, legacy of the past, are gradually being blotted out by highway construction and its inevitable aftermath, it is being borne in on us more and more insistently that we are, at the present period of our country's history, in the position of fighting to save what we shall never have another chance to save. What we accomplish in the way of wilderness preservation in the next ten, or twenty years is all that can ever be accomplished, so rapidly are the twin evils of population pressure and the tyranny of the automobile affecting our national life.

To come down to actual cases, let us consider what is happening at Lake Tahoe. Here is one of the gems of our original American wilderness. Mark Twain and other famous American writers raved about its beauties several generations ago. If they could see it now, I am sure that their enthusiasm would be greatly modified.

As a sample of its original beauties we have been able to save, up to the present time, two areas, one at the north end and one at the south end of Emerald Bay. They have been incorporated into the State Park System and are known respectively as Bliss State Park and Emerald Bay State Park. These parks were acquired by the state, largely as a result of donations of land and funds by individuals who wanted the areas to remain in their natural state permanently for the enjoyment of the people.

Now California conservationists are fighting with their backs to the wall to prevent a high-speed highway from being constructed that would bisect these rather fragile parks and bridge the outlet of Emerald Bay. In spite of thousands of letters that have been written to the Governor, the State Highway Commission and the Legislature, protesting this unnecessary invasion, since a perfectly feasible alternate route exists along the shore outside of the parks, the Legislature has passed resolutions in favor of it. As this is being written, final legislative action has not been taken, though it may be at any moment.

The main proponents of this inland highway are the commercial interests at the south end of Lake Tahoe, sometimes referred to as a "miniature Reno." The new highway would save two miles of distance but very little money in comparison with the alternate route along the shore, which would involve the construction of a tunnel as protection against snow and rock slides.

If the Legislature, yielding to the pressure from this "miniature Reno," should pass this bill, nothing can save the situation but thousands of letters to the Governor, urging him to veto the bill. If he has his ear to the ground, he may pay attention to them.

Remember, the wilderness that we now have is all we will ever have.

KLAUMANN RECOMMENDED

School board approval will be sought tonight for the appointment of Police Chief Clyde Klauermann as member at large of the district recreation committee. The city council has already recommended and approved Mr. Klauermann's appointment. He will replace Dr. William True who has resigned.

County Committee "Study" May Lose Carmel Its Schools

dropped. This failed to achieve a majority.

The Pfeiffer representative moved that Palo Colorado and Pfeiffer join the Carmel district, and couldn't get a majority.

At this point, Brooks Clement, the Pfeiffer representative on the augmented committee, moved that a study be undertaken on a peninsula unified school district. Walt Warfield of Monterey seconded it. But it was ruled out of order because Warfield and Clement are augmented committee members, not members of the basic committee.

However, Roy Gleason, basic committee member from King City, made the motion for the study on a peninsula unified school district. The vote was taken of the basic committee members, and it passed unanimously.

Basic committee members (county committee of school district organization) the eleven with whom now lies the power of absorbing Carmel schools into a peninsula district are: Roy Gleason, King City; James Abelo, Spreckles; Paul Aurignac, San Ardo; Charlotte Clark, Carmel; Arthur Durante, King City; Henry Fukuba, Aromas; Frank Gillette, Lockwood; Foster Hutchings, Pajaro; Michel Oradre, San Ardo; Francis Paul, Alisal; Loren Smith, Josselyn Canyon.

Meanwhile, in Sacramento, Carmel School District Superintendent Stuart Mitchell, Pacific Grove School Superintendent Tom Turner, and Pacific Grove School Trustee Richard Eldred were speaking in support of the county junior college bill before the Senate Educational Committee. The bill provided that an election to form a peninsula junior college district, if it succeeded, would make annexation of the new district to Hartnell mandatory.

Brooks Lockhart of Monterey School Board and Dr. Fred Huber, President of Monterey College, fought the bill and it was defeated. The Senate Committee approved the bill Monterey favored, that once a Monterey Peninsula Junior College District was formed, the new district could annex to Hartnell. The decision would lie with the board of the new peninsula junior college district; there is no mandatory provision for annexation to Hartnell. In a peninsula junior college district, Monterey would have the controlling vote on the board of trustees. And Monterey does not want a county junior college district, though it would give Hartnell Junior College and Monterey Junior College a county wide tax base.

Representatives of the state department of education told Superintendent Mitchell that Carmel could annex to Hartnell which operates on approximately half the tax rate of Monterey College, and still send its students to Monterey College on a tuition basis. Monterey could refuse such an arrangement but if one parent in the Carmel district petitioned the county board of education, Monterey could be forced to agree to the tuition arrangement. The tuition would be considerably less than Carmel is paying Monterey now as a non-member of a junior college district.

Carmel is not obliged to join either junior college. It can remain independent and continue to send its students to Monterey College, or any other college of the student's choice, and pay tuition. In a county junior college district, if it is ever formed, or in the Hartnell district, Carmel's cost of giving its students a junior college education would be greatly reduced, as would Monterey's. This would not be the case if a peninsula junior college were formed.

However, the junior college question has shrunk in importance in the face of the threat to Carmel's elementary schools and high school arising out of the County Committee of School District Organization's action in Salinas yesterday.

Briefs . . .

San Miguel roads. Only major jobs in our area, other than the Los Laureles Grade, will be realigning River Road so that its entrance into the Salinas-Monterey Highway (now at the Salinas River Bridge) will coincide with the entrance of Reservation Road (from Fort Ord) which joins the Salinas Highway farther west.

When the supervisors granted a raise in pay to the county employees, an increase in county taxes appeared inevitable.

Carmel Unified School District taxpayers will have to face another bond issue (see story this issue on new high school, junior high and elementary school construction needs.) The rest of the county school districts are in a similar position. Under the circumstances, a raise in county taxes will not be welcome.

The first impulse is to look for economies in the road department. With everybody heartsick over the freeway development on Carmel Hill, road improvements is unpopular.

However, McClain points out, that county road funds come from state allocations and sales tax, not from property tax.

Another road expenditure he mentioned: He's going to stick up some signs at the start of Glory Road saying "Steep, Narrow, Dangerous." Our suggestion for the signs: "O. K. But Not For Amateurs." Here is a road for scenery appreciators with good nerves.

Everybody in the official family was accused of being "a dirty Democrat" Monday morning. In spite of the big black headlines in the San Francisco morning papers, which get into Carmel with the streak of dawn, all three flags fluttered at full mast in Devendorf Plaza until nearly noon.

My grocery clerk told me about it. "They must be a bunch of dirty Democrats at city hall," he observed. I hastened to clear city hall. "It's the fire department. They're responsible for putting up the flags." I promised to phone the fire department.

"We just take the flags down," said the fire department. "It's the police department which puts them up."

Chief of Police Clyde Klaumann said of course his boys knew Dulles was dead but they'd read in the papers that federal installations would have the flag at half-mast.

Devendorf Plaza isn't a federal installation, he pointed out. But "Larry" had called from city hall and said people were complaining, so they'd better put it at half-mast. Which they did.

We're not so sure about Devendorf Plaza's not being a federal installation. For several days, a while back, our eyes were gladdened with the sight of the Union Jack floating brightly from the yard arm where the U. N. flag belongs. Everybody kept very quiet about it, hoping that it wouldn't get to official ears. But eventually it did, and down came the Union Jack and up went the U. N. flag—and Carmel with a mayor who's a retired Navy Commander; a city clerk, lieutenant, Naval Reserve; a planning commissioner, Lt. Commander, U.S.N.R., and a police commissioner running the Navy League.

This is a day for remembering the supreme sacrifice made by brave American fighting men and women so that we might enjoy the liberty that is our most precious possession. This is a day for rededicating ourselves to the principles for which so many gave so much.
